Statement of Acknowledgement: I wish to acknowledge this land on which the University of Toronto operates. For thousands of years it has been the traditional land of the Huron-Wendat, the Seneca, and most recently, the Mississaugas of the Credit River. Today, this meeting place is still the home to many Indigenous people from across Turtle Island and we are grateful to have the opportunity to work on this land. [https://indigenous.utoronto.ca/about/land-acknowledgement/]

In the context of this course on migration, I encourage students to critically reflect on what this statement of acknowledgement means to you in your social location. As we learn about historical and contemporary waves of migration to Canada, how have these new groups of arrivals buttressed or resisted colonial nation-building? How have Indigenous people also moved and experienced displacement from their homelands?

Course Description: This course examines contemporary migration flows, types and causes of migration, theories of migration, immigration policies, and migrant integration with emphasis on Canada.

Detailed Course Description: People across the globe have been migrating for millennia. With increases in mass transportation, cross-border communications, regional and global conflict, climate change, and labour challenges, there are more people on the move than ever: the UN estimates that international migrants comprise 3.5% of the global population. In turn, these migrants have profound effects on the new communities, networks, and economies they join in countries of destination, and on those they leave behind in their countries of origin. In this course, we will consider various theories of migration and their applicability to the unique Canadian context of immigration for nation-building and economic development. We will learn about the official policy categories of economic, family, and humanitarian migration, paying attention to the unique challenges people in each stream face, while also being mindful of the socially constructed nature of these categories. Throughout the course we will consider how immigration is linked to race and ethnicity, gender, class, citizenship, and settler colonialism.
Prerequisites: All students must have taken SOC100H prior to enrolling in this class. Students without this prerequisite will be removed at any time discovered and without notice.

Learning Objectives

By the end of the course, students will be able to:

1. Articulate theories of migration and critically evaluate their usefulness in explaining why, when, and where people move.
2. Understand historical and contemporary immigration trends in Canada and their relationship to settler colonialism, nation-building, and labour needs.
3. Critically evaluate empirical work on immigration and their links to theory, public policy, and microlevel experiences.
4. Draw connections between scholarly work on migration, current political events and everyday life.

Discussion Board Posts – 10%

Each week, please make at least one post on the discussion board before class. These posts are meant to help you think critically about the readings and come to class prepared. These posts should be about 100-200 words and can be in the form of a question, a reply to a classmate’s post, or simply some thoughts that came to you while reading. It does not need to be polished – the goal is to get you thinking and writing about the course materials.

Here are some questions to guide your thinking:

- What did you find most interesting in the readings?
- What did you have trouble understanding in the readings?
- What are lingering questions in your mind after completing the readings?
- Is there a news article, YouTube clip, podcast, or other media you can share that relates to the readings?
- Is there a concept you learned in different course that helped you better understand the readings?

Each post is worth 1% (pass/fail) up to a maximum of 10%. You may post multiple times per week, but you will only get credit for one post. To get credit for your post, you must submit before that week’s class: Mondays at 12:00. You will not be able to get credit for late posts.
In-Class Quizzes – 15%
There will be 3 short, in-class, multiple choice quizzes, each worth 5%. These are meant to check your understanding of course concepts. Quizzes will cover material after the last quiz and including the readings for the week the quiz takes place. Quizzes are scheduled to take place on January 31, February 28, and March 28.

Current Events Paper – 20%
In this paper, you will select two news articles regarding a current issue in migration (e.g. migrant workers during COVID, international students, immigrant unemployment) from reputable, mainstream, English language news sources. Both articles must be about the same issue and be published within the last year (since February 2021). You will analyze the current issue drawing on at least two course readings. Essay should be between 3-4 double-spaced pages and is due by 11:59pm on February 14. More detail will be provided in lectures.

Research Essay – 25%
In this paper, you will select an issue in migrant politics and organizing. Drawing on course readings and at least two other scholarly sources, you will analyze the issue in both theory and practice. Essay should be between 4-5 double-spaced pages and is due by 11:59pm on March 21. More detail will be provided in lectures.

Final Assessment – 30%
The final assessment will be a series of essay questions. The exam will be cumulative and closed-book and will be scheduled by the Faculty of Arts & Science.

Course Policies

Course Delivery: Classes will be delivered synchronously, online or in-person as university and public health guidelines dictate. Students are expected to attend all lectures.

Course Communication: The Quercus discussion boards are available as a space to connect with myself, the TA, and fellow students regarding the course material and assignments. If you need help understanding the course material or the assignment requirements, please post your question on Quercus so that the class can benefit from the answers. If your question is sensitive in nature or you don’t get a satisfactory answer on Quercus, you may also email me or the TA directly, or attend my office hours on Zoom on Mondays from 3:00-4:00.

Online Etiquette: Please treat your fellow students, TA, and instructor with the utmost respect online. The discussion boards, emails, and any other place where you’re communicating with the class should be a supportive and collegial environment to develop your thinking about migration. Refer to the Community Agreement for more specific guidelines.

Accessibility: The University of Toronto is committed to accessibility. If you require accommodations for a disability, or have any accessibility concerns about the course, the classroom or course materials, please visit http://studentlife.utoronto.ca/as or email accessibility.services@utoronto.ca as soon as possible. For specific COVID-19 related accessibility concerns, please visit https://www.studentlife.utoronto.ca/as/covid-19-updates.

Absence Declaration: The University is temporarily suspending the need for a doctor’s note or medical certificate for any absence from academic participation. Please use the Absence Declaration tool on ACORN found in the Profile and Settings menu to formally declare an absence from academic participation in the University. The tool is to be used if you require consideration for missed academic work based on the procedures specific to your faculty or campus. If a personal or family crisis prevents you from meeting a deadline, you must contact your college registrar and have them email the instructor directly. It is a good idea anyway to advise your college registrar if a crisis is interfering with your studies. In addition to this declaration, you are responsible for contacting me to request the academic consideration you are seeking. You will be notified by the University if this policy changes.

Late Assignments: Late assignments without a valid excuse will be deducted 5% per day, including weekends and holidays. We will not be accepting work submitted over a week late.

Missed Tests: Students who miss the final assessment will receive a mark of zero unless reasons beyond their control prevent them from taking it. Within three days of the missed test, students who wish to write the make-up test must give the instructor a written request for special consideration, accompanied by proper documentation from your college registrar or through the Absence Declaration tool on ACORN, which explains why the test was missed. The make-up test will be scheduled on Quercus. A student who misses a test and the subsequent make-up test for a valid reason will not have a third chance to take the test, and the mark assigned for the test will be zero.

Grade Appeals: If you feel the grade you received is not an accurate reflection of the work that you produced, you may appeal it through the following steps. First, you must address your grade with your TA within one week of the grade being returned to you, addressing the comments they provided to you. If you are unable to come to an agreement, you may request a re-grade from the instructor. In your request, you must address your TA’s comments and explain why you feel they do not adequately reflect your assignment. Keep in mind that upon regrading, your mark may go up or down or stay the same.

Plagiarism Detection Tool: Normally, students will be required to submit their course essays to the University’s plagiarism detection tool for a review of textual similarity and detection of possible plagiarism. In doing so, students will allow their essays to be included as source documents in the tool’s reference database, where they will be used solely for the purpose of detecting plagiarism. The terms that apply to the University’s use of this tool are described on the Centre for Teaching Support & Innovation web site (https://uoft.me/pdt-faq).

Students are permitted, under our conditions of use, to opt-out of using the University’s plagiarism detection tool. To opt out, students must inform the instructor at the beginning of the term. Students who choose to opt out must provide, along with their finished paper, sufficient secondary material (e.g., reading notes, outlines of the paper, rough drafts, etc.) to establish that the paper they submit is truly their own.
Academic Integrity: Academic integrity is fundamental to scholarship at the University of Toronto and beyond. Academic offenses include, but are not limited to, using someone else’s ideas in a paper or exam without proper citations, submitting your own work for credit in multiple courses, obtaining assistance from others during exams (including having someone edit your work or looking at a classmate’s work), and falsifying illness on the Absence Declaration tool. Please familiarize yourself with the University of Toronto’s Code of Behaviour on Academic Matters: https://governingcouncil.utoronto.ca/secretariat/policies/code-behaviour-academic-matters-july-1-2019

Writing Support: Each college has a writing centre with instructors who can assist you at various stages of writing projects. I highly recommend seeking help from your college writing centre for your reading responses. Find your writing centre here: https://writing.utoronto.ca/writing-centres/
